

With the advent of internet and cell phones being able to receive music and television...the end is near for the FCC.
No one will need to have a transmitter! No one will have to have EEO requirements! No one will have to pay annual regulatory fees! No one will have to have Public Inspection files! No one will have a job to deal with over the air AM FM TV broadcasting. What do you think???